Achieving integrated supply chain excellence with EY and P&G

Supply chain operations can no longer afford to operate in isolation. Recent global events, including the COVID-19 pandemic, has illustrated the importance of end-to-end supply chain visibility in maintaining resilience amid disruption. However, the market has been slow to catch up with this reality and many are still left behind:

- ▶ In a recent EY-conducted supply chain executive survey, end-to-end visibility was the number one factor cited in creating a successful supply chain.¹
- ▶ Despite this, over 69% of businesses lack real-time, end-to-end visibility of their supply chains, making it harder to respond to disruption and changing customer needs.²
- ▶ According to Fortune's estimate, 94% of Fortune 1000 companies have reported some kind of supply chain disruption resulting from COVID-19.³

An integrated approach to supply chain transformation using Supply Network Operations (SNO) methodology that aligns all areas of your business – extending to suppliers and customers – can help you holistically transform your supply chain and achieve end-to-end visibility.

What if you could:

- ▶ Fast-track your supply chain transformation with digital, ready-to-deploy assets?
- ▶ Set an integrated operating strategy to achieve truly integrated supply chain operations and end-to-end visibility?
- ▶ Have the end-to-end data and tools to rapidly respond to disruption?

- ▶ Instill a culture of continuous improvement and operational discipline within your supply chain organization?
- ▶ Harness industry insights from thousands of EY and P&G professionals, consisting of Procter & Gamble (P&G) planners and executive coaches, and experienced EY supply chain practitioners?
- ▶ Convert your supply chain into a competitive advantage?
